Good afternoon,

This week saw us back in the church again. It was so lovely to listen and watch the children sing and perform. You can find the recordings on the website. Ours was very visual with actions and the words HARVEST spelling out many different words from the poem. Even though you cannot see this, you can see how hard the children have worked to learn the poem by heart.

Curriculum:

During English we have retold the story of The Reluctant Dragon in first person. Some children chose to be Dotty the dragon, others St. George or Harry. Following writing the story they read and edited it with a partner. Once I had checked it, they copied it out in their very best handwriting.

We are nearly at the end of our unit on Place Value and next week we shall finish off looking at Negative Numbers and Roman Numbers.

HOMEWORK:

This week's homework is maths related. I would like the children to research all the different places that you would see or find both Negative Numbers and Roman Numerals. They can be creative with their recording e.g. draw a clock face, write out a bank statement or research the temperatures in different countries.

Please either write in your Homework book or stick the typed version in your book. Homework is marked as a whole class on Friday, so please try and send it in on time.

Thank you.

Mrs. Archer Dytch
